

Giving Back, June 12

By Crissa Shoemaker DeBree Staff Writer | Posted: Sunday, June 12, 2011 12:00 am

TruMark Financial Credit Union of Bensalem donated $815 to the Clyde F. Barker Transplant House, which will open in July near the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania to meet the needs of families of transplant patients. Employees raised the money by making donations to wear jeans to work two days last month.

Freedom Credit Union of Warminster is again sponsoring the youth-based, financial literacy television series Biz Kid$, now in its fourth season on WHY? The program teaches young people how to manage their money and start a business.

Members of GPSEG, an association of senior-level executives from throughout the Greater Philadelphia region, donated their time to volunteer for Cradles to Crayons, a nonprofit organization that donates basic essentials to low-income and homeless children. The volunteers spent a day sorting clothing, cleaning and testing toys, examining books, inspecting baby equipment and packing kidpacks at Cradles' Conshohocken warehouse.