GPSEG member Nick Araco wins “40 Under 40” honors

Philadelphia Business Journal selects RSM McGladrey director as rising star

PHILADELPHIA — Greater Philadelphia Senior Executive Group (GPSEG) member Nick Araco, Jr., director of consulting services at RSM McGladrey, Inc. accounting firm in Blue Bell, was named a 2009 “40 Under 40” honoree by the Philadelphia Business Journal.

“We’re proud one of our members received such important recognition,” GPSEG Founder and Chairman Chris Pavlides said. “GPSEG’s membership includes much of the region’s top executive talent, and Nick certainly fits the bill.”

In his role on the leadership team for RSM McGladrey’s Global Business Consulting practices, Araco, 37, provides qualified solutions and consulting services to clients in the areas of human capital management, process improvement and technology solutions.

”Nick’s leadership in the Philadelphia business community continues to flourish, as an increasing number of business leaders recognize his keen understanding of how human capital drives business success,” said Mike Dubin, executive managing director for RSM McGladrey.

Prior to joining RSM McGladrey, Araco formed and led a human resources consulting and executive search practice for a locally based Top 200 accounting and consulting firm. Araco holds a JD from the Widener University School of Law and a BBA in finance from Loyola College (Maryland). A native of Abington, he now lives in Lower Gwynedd.

The Philadelphia Business Journal honored Araco and its other “40 Under 40” winners on May 19 at the Sheraton Hill Society Hotel.
